There are innumerable elements like family & parents, schooling & education levels, monetary problems, internet, easy online videos availability, peer groups, mental issues, drugs, media, etc tender for immoral ideas in the teens. In this research paper, we extend the work of association rule mining of Juvenile delinquency [3] with two major risk elements, family background & education levels of children convoluted in crimes. I. INTRODUCTION

The incremental expansion of juvenile delinquency or criminal offence done by children below 18 years age is extensively perceived in India. The recent Hyderabad Disha rape case and Delhi Nirbhaya rape case are few of heinous crimes which persisted long in peoples mind and media. Shockingly some minor childrens are convoluted in these crimes. In 2015 year alone, over 31000 juvenile cases are filed in India as per statistics of National Crime Records Bureau NCRB India [1]. Fig 1 gives graphical overview of the major juveniles crime cases statistics for the years 2010-15 in India.

The soft children mind can be carved and turned towards crimes by innumerable elements like family & parents, schooling & education levels, monetary problems, internet, easy online videos availability, peer groups, mental issues, drugs, media, etc [2]. Family is the learning center for children to learn bad or good qualities. The rejected children by parents or children living with guardians or homeless children are found at high risk of becoming offenders. In building the personality of youth, school education also plays a pivotal role. Some key elements in the schooling setup like expulsions, failures in academics, disciplinary punishments and school dropout also adds juvenile offence cases.

In this research paper, we extend the work of association rule mining of Juvenile delinquency [3] with two major risk elements, family background & education levels of children convoluted in crimes. We discover strong rules connecting family background, education levels and Juvenile delinquency with Indian Juvenile crime dataset by association rule mining, a rule-based machine learning mechanism

II. RELATED WORK

The primitive growth hubs of children are family and home. The family and the parents are primarily responsible for overall development of children and protect them towards negative criminal moments. If a family does not provide support and guidance, the children tend towards crimes.
